Welcome to the TEA 2025!

Welcome to my happy place.

Each year as I travel home, I reflect upon this weekend and the joy it brings so many people.

We're living in troubling times, when the actions of so few are affecting so many - in both the trans community and the adult industry. For this weekend, instead of dwelling on the uncertainty of what may happen, I'm going to ask you to put that aside just for a few days and focus on yourself, on your friends, on those you have yet to meet, and on embracing the many beautiful and good things we have as a shared community.

The TEA Show was created out of a necessity to embrace and celebrate the trans adult industry, at a time when we felt alienated or overlooked by much of the rest of the porn world. Much has changed in the years since, and the acceptance, the camaraderie, and warmth we feel from the vast majority of the industry have started to feel like the norm. Seeing fabulous trans performers get hired by a wider range of companies, seeing them on stage at the many shows, and the participation of trans performers in marketing campaigns is not a choice of inclusion, but of good business.

We welcome and thank those who made this weekend possible. Pornhub has once again stepped up to support us as our Presenting Sponsor for the show, and Clips4Sale also for their support of our Pre-Party. Our friends at Bad Dragon, Chaturbate, Streamate, Transfixed, LoyalFans, TransAngels, Ten15 Group, VRBTrans, and Eva AI come from a wide array of different types of companies, all working with trans adult performers. Thank you to all our sponsors, Adult Empire, BanksieTV, GenderX Films, Micha Angela, Aiden Starr, PornCrush, Dr. Alexander Sinclair, Wicked Sensual Care, Aubrey Kate (and Transcending Agency), as well as Altomic Visuals, Bea York, ElevatedX, Emily Adaire, Tom Moore, Shiri Allwood, Tgirl Nights, Emma Rose, Little Puck, and everyone who has contributed to making the TEA Awards possible.

Mark Rollings (markrollings.com) works tirelessly year after year as the 'Voice of the TEAs' and without his help, the show would be a lot poorer. The 'Face of the TEAs' is, of course, Domino Presley, who is more than just the host; she works with us on ideas throughout the year to ensure we have the best show possible, improving each year. Once again, we're honored to have icons Natassia Dreams and Foxy as our red carpet hosts and Banksie as our Pre-Party and Awards Media Wall host and Backstage Winners' Interviewer. Thank you to our opening acts, The Gurls and King Noire, to the awesome photographers shooting the red carpet and around the show (Al Tom, Ben, Rick, and Jay), and to the staff of the stunning Avalon, who make it so easy for us to want to return each year.

Finally, I have to highlight my company, Grooby. We're not a company that runs shows, we're a paysite company - so the fact that Kristel and the rest of the team onsite (Alex, Mike, Moe) as well as everyone else involved, from our visual editors, graphic designers, financial management and more, can put this together year after year, while also taking care of our core business, is something I never take for granted. Without them, there would be no TEA show.

Of course, there also would be no TEA show without the models, the performers, the producers as well as the fans who pay for their porn. As much as this show is about the nominations and the winners, it's more about the celebration of trans erotica and all of you attending, whether you were nominated or not, are all winners. You are part of a beautiful community of people who are here to support each other, to help platform each other. You are the foundation of a community that will not be broken, will continue to grow and who will continue to excel.

This weekend is my happy place. The smiling faces, the hugs, and the laughs. Meeting many of you for the first time. Watching you meet others. Seeing many of you thrive in this environment, some for the first time. Watching you take away your new alliances into future friendships and work partnerships. Knowing that the photographs from this year, will be immortalized into social media and shown to the world, where they will be shared and never erased.

Steven

Domino Presley

The Transcendence Award is sponsored by Dr. Alexander Sinclair and honors an individual who goes above and beyond their role as a performer in the industry. “Self-actualization is becoming your best self; self-transcendence is the process of connecting with something greater than yourself,” explains Dr. Sinclair. “Domino Presley is that; she is the straw that stirs the drink.”

“I’ve known Domino for a long time,” says Steven Grooby. “It’s been 15 years since she first worked with us, and I met her shortly after that. She was sassy and seemed stand-offish, and even though I’d see her every so often at Buddy’s house where she’d hang out, we never really connected, but I knew she was one hell of a model and an awesome performer. Fast forward a few years when she started to get involved with the TEAs, and I discovered that the sassiness is just the character she plays, and the real ‘Domino’ is someone far more profound, with empathy for what’s going on around her, with a wicked sense of humour and a genuine concern to better this industry and her trans brothers and sisters with it.”

Domino Presley is an American adult film performer, director, and adult talent agent who debuted in the adult industry in 2010. Using her far-reaching platform, she championed greater inclusivity and visibility of minoritized performers in adult entertainment. Through her management company, she advocated for higher pay and ethical treatment of performers on-set and continues to use her voice to uplift the trans community. As a trailblazer in the adult industry, she was the first trans performer to win an award in a non-trans exclusive category and continues receiving numerous accolades in her illustrious career. She was also the first director to feature trans masculine and BBW performers in a mainstream adult movie.

Steven continues, “She’s genuinely one of my favourite people to sit down and shoot the shit with, but it’s only been in the last couple of years I’ve discovered through others about her generosity and actions that have helped other trans people. It’s a testament to someone’s character that when they are so visible and upfront to us all, they quietly do good without signaling it, how genuine that person is, and how large a heart they have. Many of us play characters to the public, and it’s what you do in reality when not in character that shows who you truly are - and I hope more of you get to appreciate who Domino actually is.”

In 2022, Domino created the Jazmin Shibata Scholarship with therapist Kristel Penn (Yoneda), which financially supports trans performers to receive free therapy and professional letters of support (for transition).

“In 2008, I was a baby trans girl and knew there was more life for me to experience outside of Atlanta, GA,” shares Domino. “To do this semi-safely, I needed to get my name changed, but that wasn’t something I could just look up how to do on the internet in that time. Gay marriage wasn’t even legal yet in most states. This absolutely insanely gorgeous trans girl I knew, Melania, who lived a very stealth life, called me up and gave me all the information on how to not only get my name legally changed, but do it basically overnight, and under $50. After my name was successfully changed and I had my new license, I called Melania and asked if there was anything I could do to thank her. She said to me, always throw the rope back for the next girl. I’ve lived with that mentality ever since. The Jazmin Shibata scholarship is one of the ways I can keep that promise.”

“Domino is a force of nature (for good),” says Kristel Penn. “We’ve had many passionate conversations about the needs of the trans adult community, and I really respect her clarity and decisiveness about how she wanted to use her resources to create positive change. I’ve known Domino for the entirety of my career and she leads by example. She is not afraid to speak up and actively uses her privilege to elevate the voices of those around her, particularly those who may feel less empowered to do so. She encourages and challenges me to do the same and I am honored to consider her a friend. Through the Jazmin Shibata scholarship, I’ve offered nearly 200 therapy sessions over the last two years at no cost to our recipients.”

Domino adds, “Kristel and I created this scholarship to help underprivileged trans sex workers gain free access to the required therapy and readiness referral letters one needs in order to surgically further one’s transition. As someone who came from very little, I understand how important even the tiniest amount of help can be. To me, it’s very important to GIVE BACK to the trans community. In an industry, society, and world where trans people are already taken advantage of, shrunken, and disrespected so often, I’d like to be someone who just gives back.”

Buddy Wood

I have no recollection of meeting Buddy Wood for the first time. In fact, I can't even recall hiring him to shoot for Grooby. It just seems that he's been part of the company for so long, and is so ingrained into its culture - and that we've spent so many evenings having a beer, talking about the girls and the sites, while lamenting we were both meant to be working in Hollywood - that he is part of the DNA that makes up Grooby.

What I do know (from looking at the records) is that he came aboard in 2002, when the company was only six years old and competing for space in the boom years of the early part of the millennium. Working out of San Diego, where he was an editor for a gay porn company, which is where he met his friend Danny (Sparky Snakeden), he started producing content of trans girls from there, which developed into what would be his life's work. When the stage name Buddy Wood was born, it was as if millions of future trans girls' voices suddenly cried out, "Film my butt, Buddy!"

Buddy soon relocated from San Diego to Los Angeles, where the pool of trans girl talent was huge at that time. There were two super clubs: Peanuts (Club 7969) in Hollywood and the legendary Queen Mary on Ventura Blvd in the Valley. These were the days that all the top models would go to trans-specific clubs, as the acceptance and inclusivity in non-trans clubs was still far off. On any given Friday at Peanuts, you could bump into Gia Darling, Kimberly Devine, Olivia Love, Meghan Chevalier, Vo D'Balm, and any number of other trans girls. Queen Mary catered to the same girls, but was also more accessible to new girls discovering themselves (with the help of the internet), and you would find Vicki Richter, Khloe Hart, Danielle Foxx also. The scene was quite cliquy at the time in LA, and I put a lot of Buddy's success, which translated into the success of Grooby, into how he broke down that clique. After the clubs closed, everyone was welcome back at Buddy's house; it didn't matter if you were the top trans model in the world or the brand new cross-dresser finding her feet, he didn't gatekeep on age, looks, background, or where a model was in their transition. They all came together, shared a joint, had some drinks, and a bigger community was born. When you are that open and as inclusive as Buddy was, a beautiful thing happened. New girls started asking if he would shoot with them. Girls who had previously felt like outsiders, because they didn't have the look, the presence, or the perceived value that the box cover stars had (the majority of trans porn at that time), but new girls who had that fresh 'girl next door' look, or girls who didn't fit any stereotype and that's what helped Grooby find its true direction.

If you want to make a comparison to those days, if you imagine what Andy Warhol's Factory did for the NY art movement or the music coming out of the counter-culture hub of Laurel Canyon in the late 60s and 70s, then this was Buddy's house in Toluca Lake. Any weekend night, there would be girls from out of town staying, people popping in, drinks flowing, and the pool full. This wasn't a big porn mansion, but a typical valley-style corner lot, with a bit of privacy, two bedrooms, and a carpet and sofa that you wouldn't want to shine a black light on, and would be a crime investigator's nightmare. It was cool, it was relaxed, and it was the melting pot where everyone met. Buddy's strength in finding new models, debuting so many, and having the reputation he does, beloved among so many of the girls, isn't down to his work ethic, his professionalism or his drive. It's down to his acceptance of everyone, his patience, his ability to find what makes a new girl tick, and his ability to put girls at ease, presenting them at their best, and making them comfortable and happy with the results.

But it's not just about the models. Buddy Wood has got ideas and an eye on him. He comes from a film school background (as do I) and has developed plots and scenes over the years, from his well-received 'Neighbourhood' series, his Secret Service DVD, his much anticipated Halloween shoots (who could forget Daisy Taylor's!) and of course, the on-going Poolboy series. He is, in my mind, without a doubt, the best editor working in porn, and when he edits his trailers and his own shoots, then you are in for a treat. His ideas, his look, his style, and editing make him like trans porn Tarantino or Scorsese...with a lot more buttocks.

I tried to count how many models Buddy has shot for us over the years, and gave up but picked two random years of 2017 (49 models) and 2019 (52 models), so one could extrapolate approximately 600-800 unique models. Buddy has had a few muses who he has filmed more than most girls: Khloe Hart, Hazel Tucker, Kimber James, Morgan Bailey, Domino Presley, Daisy Taylor, Celeste, and, of course, Sofia Ferreira (being the most obvious). When you look at the list of stars he's filmed, many of whom had their first shoots with Buddy: Foxy, Yasmin Lee, Heather Towers, Doll, Jessica Host, Amber Bangs, Olivia Love, Danielle Foxx, Amy Daly, Jesse Flores, Natassia Dreams, Astrid Shay, Bee Armitage, Ashley George, Juliette Stray, Sunshyne Monroe, Jenna Rachels, Eva Lin, Aubrey Starr, Natalie Foxx, Adrianna Rush, Jane Marie, Venus Lux, Annalise Rose, Gianna Rivera, Ryder Monroe, Kim Bella, Penny Tyler, Sofia Sanders, Chelsea Marie, Tori Mayes, Jessy Dubai, Johanna Bardin, Kylie Maria, Luna Rose, Nadia Love, Korra Del Rio, Casey Kisses, Aspen Brooks, Jamie Kelly, Annabelle Lane, Carrie Emberlyn, Lena Moon, Natalie Mars, Melanie Brooks, Andrea Zhay, Alisia Rae, Shiri Allwood, Nicole Knight, Luna Love, Claire Tenebrarum, Jenna Gargles, Gracie Jane, Natalie Stone, Tori Easton, Crystal Thayer, Emma Rose, Ariel Demure, Jade Venus, Izzy Wilde, Eros Orisha, Paradise, Ember Fiera, Lola Morena, Alexa Scout, Billie Beaumont, Bella Sky, Kalli Grace, Rachael Belle, Akaya Prime, Drewcilla, Aubrey Kate, Amanda Riley, Kasey Kei, Leilani Lei, Brittney Kade, Olivia Would, Jasmine Lotus, Eva Maxim, Genesis Green, Valeria Atreides, Chloe Jordan, Asia Belle, Jayne Calloway, Victoria Grant, Blake Lovely, Nikki North, Eris Jolie, June Ferrari, Madison Dakota, Lucy Fae, and of course, our brand ambassadors, Zariah Aura, Cloudy Vi, and bang up to date, with Avery Lust. No producer has done more to proliferate trans girls in porn, and as importantly, the widest range of trans models, as Buddy Wood.

When not working, Buddy is a huge sports fan and follows his beloved Chicago Cubs from his birth city, as well as being a big movie buff - both of which you can see alluded to in his shoots. When he's not working, or watching his sports, he gets to spend time with his gorgeous wife, Raquel.

This honor is overdue for Buddy Wood - the trans porn world owes him a debt of gratitude. The fans really need to appreciate Buddy, even if they're not fans of Grooby websites. If it wasn't for him, there would be far fewer new trans girls coming through, and many of the models who came to be the largest performers in the world, started with him, and many honed their looks, their confidence and their performances with him. Trans models, almost all of whom have worked with Buddy, love working with him and should understand the difficulties in production back when we started. Buddy was able to cut through the stereotypes of what a porn producer was and present such a wide range of models to the world. We hear from girls now who tell us, they weren't born until long after the websites were up, yet the types of models they saw on our sites give them the confidence to be themselves, and much of that is down to Buddy.

And I, of course, owe him a personal debt of thanks - not only for what he's done for our company over the years but for teaching me in those early years about acceptance and inclusivity of everyone, about the art of the schmooze (and Buddy is one of the best schmoozers around), for the great laughs over the years, the many beers shared, the comedy stories about the shoots (there really should be a book), for the feedback, the patience, the listening and I'm grateful to be his pal.

Stand up and thank Buddy Wood.

Presenting Avery Lust as 2025 Grooby Ambassador

Yasmin Lee

Shortly after last year's show, I was messaged by a peer asking why Yasmin Lee had never been awarded the Lifetime Achievement Award. I replied that she had; she was one of the first recipients of it 'back in the day.' then went to check the year. When I couldn't find it, I messaged Kristel and Alex, and they checked. The Mandela effect was in full force, and when I realized this, I was surprised, shocked, and more than a little embarrassed that one of the industry's most beloved performers who also appeared in Hollywood releases (and who is always so gracious with her support of the TEAs) had been omitted.

So we're putting this right.

Yasmin Lee. We all know the name and we all know who she is. Yasmin is very much a Star. Her presence and allure enter the room first, parting the crowds for the stunning and statuesque unique individual that follows. Her smile radiates throughout the room; she holds herself with poise and grace. Yasmin always has time and a kind word for everyone and is a superb ambassador and example for trans porn and the performers working in it.

Yasmin has a unique background, a story to tell that is still unfolding, and it's made her into the woman she is today. Born in war-torn Cambodia, her family was imprisoned in a work camp for over five years, and it was during their perilous escape that Yasmin was born in the Cambodian jungle, then surviving as a refugee in Thailand, and the Philippines before settling in Orange County, CA. As a child of refugees, she had a unique perspective on life in California and the US, and like many others, she joined the US Navy. She later moved to Los Angeles to pursue a career as a makeup artist in mainstream entertainment.

In a competitive industry, Yasmin found work as an assistant and production assistant for Anabolic (one of the biggest adult video production companies of the 1990s), where she applied her makeup skills in various productions before being pivotal in the launch of their first trans series. In 2005, when one of the actresses canceled from 'Tgirls 2', she cast herself in the role, and the rest, as they say, is history! As a fan, I think the model that dropped out so Yasmin could take her place.

From that serendipitous toe-dip as a performer, Yasmin crafted collaborations with Rodney Moore for his 'Sh*male Stokers' series (later called 'Transational Fantasies'), as well as becoming a favorite for Joey Silvera at Evil Angel and appearing on GroobyGirls shooting with Buddy Wood. But I believe it's Yasmin's work with Kink for which she'll be mostly remembered, a company that at this time would parallel the processes of mainstream filmmaking in their approach, their props, production, and the filming of the scenes.

Yasmin was Kink's most popular, prolific, and in-demand trans performer. She excelled in the roles she was given, and she dominated over 50 scenes, with male performers such as Sebastian Keys, Will Havoc, Rick Fantana, Eli Hunter, and many more.

Mainstream media next came calling, and Yasmin memorably appeared on Maury Povich and America's Next Top Model, which led to a breakout role in the hit 'The Hangover Part II' in 2011, working alongside Ed Helms, Zack Galifianakis, and Bradley Cooper. This led to projects such as "Red Ice," "Promoted," "Loves Me, Loves Me Not," and "Bloomers".

Yasmin has been focused for the last few years on creating her own content, following the trend of many performers, capitalizing on and continuing her brand, and delivering directly to her many fans the porn they want.

I've always been a little bit in awe of Yasmin. As mentioned, she's one of the true stars of trans porn, and she's as relevant in 2025 as she's always been. When you learn a little more about her background, when you get to spend some time and find out how sharp her intelligence is, but also how humble and lovely she is to everyone, then she becomes even more endearing. It's been my honor to have her at the TEAs for many years. As a long-time presenter, usually for the last (and largest) award of the evening, but this year, I'm even more honored to be able to finally recognize Yasmin for who she is and to honor her life and achievements she has made in trans porn. I give my thanks to Yasmin on behalf of the adult trans industry and its many fans, of which I count myself as one.

Ladies and Gentlemen, Yasmin Lee.

Best Industry Professional

Rick Garcia

This award is to honor and thank those working in the adult industry, but not necessarily exclusively in the trans adult industry, who have helped shape, platform, and support adult performers, with specific emphasis on trans performers and content creators.

Every time I see Rick Garcia at an event, I immediately run up to him to give him a big hug. Although he is often camera-in-hand and busy, he always makes sure he always welcomes me (and my hugs) with open arms. He is as warm and lovely as he is talented as a photographer, and I'm very honored to present this award to him this year.

Rick Garcia (also known by his social media handle @IndustryByRick on X) is a rockstar in the adult space. With 20 years of experience working at our industry's most well-known events, you'll often see him in his coveted spot on the red carpet as one of the first smiling faces you'll encounter of the night.

He started his career in 2005, covering tattoo conventions and other events. His first creative work was featured in the popular tattoo publication Pain Magazine. He then branched out to work in the Hollywood music scene, covering club and music events for local LA music magazine Rock City. He teamed up with a local club promoter to start shooting adult industry events, where he met Will Ryder, who asked him to cover his official porn event, the infamous annual Heaven and Hell party held in Hollywood.

Rick's coverage of the events and other industry gatherings encouraged him to start submitting photos to major adult publications AVN and XBIZ. This move led to feature work, shooting stills for studios such as Adam and Eve, Hustler, Wicked, Metro, and Naughty America.

Since meeting Rick, I've noticed the consistent and above-and-beyond effort he makes to ensure our community is represented in event photos, especially at mainstream events where trans performers encountered prejudice and were historically underrepresented. This inclusion is not an afterthought for Rick. I have seen him on countless occasions go well out of his way to ensure that not only is the trans adult community highlighted but also that these performers feel respected and welcomed during the experience.

The TEA Pre-Party is sometimes one of the first industry events trans performers attend at the beginning of their careers. The media wall, although smaller than the one set up on Vine St. during the Awards on Sunday, can still be a place of anxiety for newcomers. Some are unsure how to pose or if they are welcome to take photos in front of the wall, and Rick steps in every time to help. He is patient and kind, even as the line for photos curves into the bar area as the night progresses. Last year, I asked him if he could take a few non-work pictures at the Pre-Party because my friend Spencer Bradley and I wanted to celebrate our respective missed graduations. To my surprise, Rick showed up with multiple graduation caps, gowns, and a fake diploma for both of us to pose with. The pictures he took that evening are some of my favorites to date.

Congratulations to Rick, a talented and kind human whose hard work and dedication elevate not just the trans community but the adult industry as a whole. We all are better for it (and look amazing because of him).

Siouxsie Q

A Visionary in Filmmaking, Advocacy, and Activism

There is something about being in the presence of Siouxsie Q that sparks a sense of possibility. Her energy is infectious, her passion undeniable, and her unwavering commitment to advocacy and storytelling inspires those around her to believe in a better, more just world. Whether through her groundbreaking work in filmmaking, her fearless activism, or her influential writing, Siouxsie Q has left an indelible mark on the adult industry and beyond.

Siouxsie Q's body of work is so expansive that a single article can hardly capture its full scope. An award-winning director, producer, and outspoken advocate, she has dedicated her career to championing sex worker and LGBTQ+ rights, free speech, and political engagement. Her journey began long before she entered the adult industry—starting in high school, where she founded her school's first Gay-Straight Alliance, and later, in leadership positions at the University of Oregon's Queer Speaker's Bureau and Queer Film Festival. From the outset, her mission has been clear: to uplift, empower, and celebrate marginalized communities.

Her contributions to the adult industry are vast and deeply influential. With a performing, directing, and producing career spanning multiple renowned studios—including Adult Time, Wicked, Disruptive Films, ASG Max, Erika Lust Films, Kink.com, and more—Siouxsie Q has established herself as a visionary filmmaker dedicated to authentic, diverse, and ethically produced content. Her work is distinguished by its commitment to performer agency, artistic expression, and pushing creative boundaries while ensuring that the voices of those in front of the camera remain central to the storytelling process.

In 2024, her achievements were recognized when she was honored as XBIZ Gay Director of the Year alongside her partner and collaborator, Michael Vegas. This accolade highlights her role as a trailblazer in queer adult cinema, bringing fresh, innovative perspectives to the genre while prioritizing ethical production standards and representation.

Siouxsie Q's impact extends far beyond filmmaking. She has long been a vital voice in shaping public conversations around sex work and free speech. Her early work in podcasting with The WhoreCast and Ill Repute helped shift mainstream narratives about sex workers in the United States. Additionally, her widely read column, The Whore Next Door, in the SF Weekly, and contributions to legacy media, including Rolling Stone, have played a crucial role in reframing societal attitudes toward sex work, digital rights, and bodily autonomy.

Her advocacy efforts are equally formidable. She has worked closely with organizations such as the Free Speech Coalition, ACLU of Southern California, Adult Performer Advocacy Committee, and PASS Certified to fight censorship, protect performers' rights, and improve industry standards. During the 2024 election, she partnered with Elevate (@beyondsexwork) to provide voter education and mobilization for sex workers and adult industry professionals. She also spearheaded the Hot2Vote initiative, a campaign aimed at increasing civic engagement within the adult entertainment community. As a leading figure in the Hands Off My Porn movement, she continues to combat government overreach and legislative threats to digital freedoms, advocating tirelessly for the autonomy and rights of artists and creators everywhere.

Siouxsie Q's career is a testament to the power of blending creative excellence with activism. She is a force for change, challenging stigma, uplifting marginalized voices, and using every platform available to advocate for a more equitable world. Whether through film, journalism, or activism, Siouxsie Q remains an undeniable trailblazer—one whose work will continue to inspire and transform industries for years to come.
